DEPARTMENT OF COMPUTER SCIENCE, IIIT LUCKNOW

About

Department of Computer Science consists of a team of highly dedicated, learned and well-qualified faculties with a wide expertise in all the areas of Computer Science and Artificial Intelligence. Computer Science deals with the application of computers to solve real-world problems to facilitate Businesses and create Information Systems. As the world becomes technologically advanced every day, well-trained IT professionals are needed. Thus, courses designed by the Department of Computer Science are according to the industry needs. Department of Computer Science provides B. Tech (CS, CS&AI and CS&B), M. Tech. (CS with specialization of Data Science and Artificial Intelligence), and Ph.D. programmes. The students are admitted for B. Tech. program through JOSAA and CSAB based on merit. The students are admitted for M. Tech. program through CCMT. For Ph.D. programme, the selections are held Yearly twice, November-December and June-July. Currently there are more than fifteen Ph.D. candidates and four batches of B. Tech. in CS, CS&AI and CS&B with a total of around 800 students, two batches of M. Tech in CS with a total of around 60 students. The curriculum is revised regularly to keep up the future needs of the industries. The students are given all-round development by providing a blend of academics and research with professional ethics, physical health and extracurricular activities.

Modern day's intelligent systems are no longer artificial. The Artificial Intelligence is in a sense artificial as it does not have biological features. Problem solving using programming is the backbone of Computer Science. However, some qualitative features such as learning and adaptability make a solution independent, which does not require future human intervention. These solutions to different kinds of problems have made human life easier. Some intelligent solutions to problems that we encounter in our day to day lives are medical diagnosis, object tracking, face recognition, social behavior analysis, purchase pattern analysis, recommendation systems, etc. However, modern intelligent systems try to mimic the human recognition, analysis and learning capabilities, which are reflected in the existing modern day's systems. Based on the importance of Artificial Intelligence, the B. Tech (CS&AI) course has been designed to prepare an aspirant engineer to understand and solve core problems such as designing compatible algorithms, and translation of algorithms to efficient programs, understand to solve real-time problems. There are other auxiliary subjects to enhance the professional, entrepreneurial and people skills. The knowledge and capabilities required to develop systems with human like intelligence will be imparted to the young aspirants through the subject matter in the following areas – Intelligent Database Management, Artificial Intelligence, Big-Data Analytics, Natural Language Processing, Machine Learning, Deep Learning, Image and Vision Processing, etc.

B. Tech in Computer Science and Business is a professional discipline which offers an amalgamation of both technology and management in a single program. As the boundaries between the two fields have started to dissolve, this program focuses on equipping students with evolving technology as well as business skills. In this program the students will learn subjects of Computer Science such as Programming, Algorithm, System Design, Data Structure, Competitive Coding, Database Management System, Operating System, Software Engineering, etc. The Business Management courses include Professional Communication, Fintech, Digital Marketing, Design Thinking, People Management, E-Business, Economics and more. The program focuses on enabling students to comprehend how technological transformation is intertwined with business management. This program will provide a deep understanding of Computer Science by developing problem solving and mathematical skills. The business courses will help them build upon their management skills and enhance their understanding of business. This will broaden the scope of knowledge application in both the fields of Computer Science and Business and prepare the students to face the challenges of future.

Sufficient Job opportunities are provided by the placement cell of IIIT Lucknow. The graduate students find jobs as- Data Analysts, IT Managers, Cyber Security expert, Cloud administrator, Network administrator and telecommunications to name a few. The students will get ample opportunity to develop their skills in this growing technology through projects and research assignments. They will also get able guidance from the eminent faculties of the department. We believe that aspirants will thoroughly enjoy this curriculum track while gaining the relevant skills to become a successful Engineer.
